

AMERICAN ARMY OFFICER KILLED DURING AIR RAID

Capt. Robert M. Losey,
Attache at Stockholm,
Struck in Heart

Washington, April 22.—(AP)—The state department received word today that Captain Robert M. Losey, assistant military attache at Stockholm, Sweden, was killed in a German bombing raid at Bombas, Norway, yesterday.

Losey was the first American killed on land since the European war started.

The state department said Losey had gone from Stockholm into Norway to assist in removing Americans from the war zone.

Frederick A. Sterling, American minister to Sweden, cabled the state department that he had just received a telegram from Opdal, dated yesterday, and signed by Major Yssum, presumably a Norwegian army officer, which read:

"American military attache Captain Losey was killed by German bomber plane at Dombas today, Inform Mrs. Harriman (American minister to Norway)."

"He will be sent tomorrow Monday via Roros to Fjellnas, where instructions from legation are awaited."

Sterling telegraphed the American naval attache Lieutenant Commander Ole O. Hagen, who is now near Fjellnas (on the Swedish-Norwegian border), to receive the body and await further instructions.

The state department has instructed its legation at Stockholm to obtain all possible information on the circumstances of the death.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, minister to Norway, had cabled that on Saturday afternoon, Captain Losey had gone to Norway to contact a party of Americans being moved out under the escort of Lieutenant Commander Hagen.

The party was coming over the northern road from Lillehammer, where the Americans had been concentrated, to Sarna. The party of Americans was composed largely of the families of the American legation and consulate at Oslo. It crossed the frontier into Sweden under Hagen's escort yesterday and is now at Fjellnas.

Capt. Losey reported for duty to Minister Sterling at Stockholm only a few days ago. He previously had been in Finland as an observer during the Russo-Finnish war.

Losey, 31 years old, was born at Andrews, Iowa, was graduated from West Point in 1929 and last served at Matfield Field, Calif. He was assigned as assistant military attache for air to Scandinavia in February.

Dombas is on the railroad about 100 miles south, as the crow flies, and a little west of Trondheim. The Rauma river flows nearby.

BY BOMB SPLINTER
Stockholm, April 22.—(AP)—Captain Robert M. Losey, assistant United States military attache at Stockholm, was killed by a bomb splinter, the Göteborg newspaper Handels Tidningen said today.

Losey, it said, was standing upright in a mountain tunnel during a German air bombardment at Dombas.

Expect to Find More Bodies in N. Y. Train Wreck

Albany, N. Y., April 22.—(AP)—Investigation of the New York Central train derailment which killed 30 and injured 100 at Little Falls, N. Y., turned to Albany today as workers continued to search the wreckage for more possible victims.

While representatives of the railroad, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the state public service commission were summoned to the inquiry, weary crews struggled to clear the tracks along the historic Mohawk valley route.

The hearing began behind locked doors. W. H. Wood, superintendent of the railroad's Mohawk division, said no announcement would be made "until our investigation is complete."

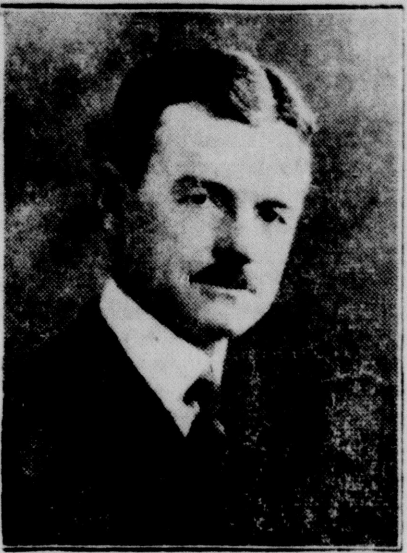

The superintendent explained that it probably would be "a month or more" before the results would be known.

The locomotive, tender and two cars still remained at the sharp curve where the fast New York-Chicago Lake Shore limited, speeding westward at nearly a mile-a-minute clip, leaped the rails and plunged against a stone embankment late Friday night.

Herkimer county Coroner Fred C. Sablin, postponing a scheduled inquest until later in the week, said he was informed by state police that two or more bodies probably will be recovered.

All of the 30 bodies thus far removed from the debris have been identified, the railroad listing 19 as "revenue passengers" and the remainder as "non-revenue passengers", including employees.

Annual Want Ad Week Starts in Dixon This Morn

The Eighth Annual Want Ad Week will be observed by The Telegraph during the week of April 21 to 27, is announced today by Lois M. Fellows, classified advertising manager.

During the week the spotlight of national attention will be focused on the want ads, and the story of the important part they play in the daily life of the American people will be told.

As a member of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which sponsors National Want Ad Week, The Telegraph is joining hands with several hundred of the leading newspapers of the country in celebrating the event. These newspapers have a combined audience of more than 100,000,000 readers; and the association, through its campaign, will bring to many of them a new appreciation of classified ads and their diversified uses.

Many Interesting Stories
Many interesting stories could be told about the things which people have done with want ads, and the things that want ads have done for people. Newspaper files are full of them.

Oldest Form
Want ads are the oldest form of newspaper advertising. A century ago ads like those in the want ad columns—little notices of a few lines each—were the only form of newspaper advertising known.

Even then they paid well. They pay better today because people have learned to look for them and to use them in a great variety of ways.

Because want ads are of such great importance and value to readers and advertisers alike, various newspapers have at one time or another in past years held "Want Ad Week," during which they tried to educate more people to read and use the want ad columns.

It remained, however, for the

Mrs. Walter Eastman Fatally Hurt in Sunday Crash

One of the worst automobile accidents which has occurred in Lee county in many months took place Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at Halligan's corners, on state route 26 at the junction where the Harmon and Walton spurs intersect with the state route and in it Mrs. Walter Eastman of Woosung was killed instantly as a car driven by Ignatius "Nate" Gugerty, Ohio, route 2, crashed into the side of one driven by Glenn "Joe" Lambert of Polo. The latter's car was thrown and rolled more than a hundred feet from the point of impact and against the north side of the Halligan's service station.

Gugerty's car, which approached the state highway from the Walton spur to the east, rolled over on its top near the gasoline pumps in the service station driveway.

No eye witnesses to the crash were known and the occupants of the Lambert car, all of whom were in the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital, were unable to give an account of the accident. Lambert and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert Dresden, 49, of East Grove township were in a critical condition, reports from the hospital indicated. Mrs. Lambert, a bride of less than five weeks, and her brother, Garth Dresden, were also patients in the hospital.

Inquest Continued

State Highway Officer Edward Mahan of this city, who took charge of the removal of the dead and injured from the scene, conferred with State's Attorney Edward Jones prior to the opening of the inquest into the death of Mrs. Eastman this morning, and the county prosecutor announced that charges would be preferred against Gugerty at the conclusion of the inquest. Dr. Kenyon B. Segner, coroner, empaneled a jury at the Jones funeral home at 10 o'clock this morning, and continued the inquest until some of the crash victims are able to testify.

Gugerty, who resides on a farm northeast of Ohio, was driving west on the Walton spur and failed to stop at the state highway intersection, it was alleged. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert, with Mrs. Dresden, her son, Garth, 14, and Mrs. Walter Eastman, were driving south on state route 26.

Met Instant Death

Mrs. Eastman sustained injuries.

Eleven Killed in Minnesota's Worst Traffic Accident

Slayton, Minn., April 22.—(AP)—Minnesota's worst traffic accident in its history, which brought mangled death to 11 young men and women near here early Sunday morning, sent county and city officials on a searching investigation today in an effort to determine the cause of the tragedy which left the highway near here a shambles.

Two light sedans were involved in the crash—a terrific head-on collision that scattered gears and other parts of the machines over the road, strewn some of the victims on the blacktop and crashed others in the tangled wreckage.

Only two of 13 passengers in the two machines, ranging in age from 17 to 23 years, escaped death, and one was so badly hurt that physicians expect he will die.

The Dead:

Wayne Gamble, 17, Hadley; Irene Schwab, 17, and Rachel Fisher, 17, both of Fulda; Harold and Lorenz Tuynmans, brothers, 18 and 19, respectively, of near Slayton; and Everett Johnson, 17, Slayton. All were riding in one car.

In the second machine and all of Jackson were George Larson, 20; Carl A. Falk, 21, Gordon Meyers, 23; Leo Egge, 18; Hollis Luf, 18.

WORST OF OHIO RIVER FLOOD IS BELIEVED OVER

Families Returning to Lowland Homes to Clean Up Today

Marietta, Ohio, April 2.—(AP)—A crest nine feet above flood stage in places rolled down the Ohio valley today but the rain-gorged river receded north of Marietta.

Rivermen generally agreed that "the worst is over". Hundreds of families driven from lowland homes upriver returned to clean up.

Tributary floods apparently proved most costly. Highway engineers estimated damage to roads in southern Ohio at $1,000,000. Two drownings were reported in West Virginia, and swollen streams in northern Ohio claimed the lives of two children.

Marietta merchants worked throughout the night moving stocks to safety as the river rose a tenth of a foot an hour toward an anticipated mid-morning crest of 45 feet, nine above flood stage.

The crest was expected to reach Huntington, W. Va., some 100 miles downstream, tonight but observers said the river probably wouldn't go more than five feet above the 50-foot flood stage there.

Cincinnati looked for a 59-foot crest while Louisville, Ky., prepared for a top of 36 feet about Thursday. Cincinnati's flood stage is 52 feet. The stage there at midnight was 55.15 feet. Water was three feet above flood stage of 28 feet at Louisville.

One of the hardest-hit towns was Point Pleasant, W. Va., a traditional flood victim. Seven feet of water swirled through the main street last night. Pomeroy and Portsmouth, Ohio, were isolated.

NEW ENGLAND ANXIOUS

Boston, April 22.—(AP)—A roaring snow and rain laden north-easter, which whipped up immense tides and isolated the northeast tip of Maine and sections of other coastal communities, confronted New England today with the possibility of serious floods as rivers rose in the wake of the storm.

The blow reached blizzard proportions in Maine and Vermont and some sections of New Hampshire, where from five to 10 inches of snow fell, impeding traffic and ditching scores of automobiles without serious injury to passengers.

Weatherman Good to Bluefield Citizens

Bluefield, W. Va., April 22.—(AP)—The weatherman came through at the crucial moment today to save this coal-producing center's slogan, "nature's air-conditioned city".

It was circus day—the "day of reckoning" designed by Mayor William C. Snyder—and it dawned warm and sunny.

Even members of the Lions Club, who started the campaign to outlaw the slogan after a series of civic events were snowed or rained out, could find nary a cloud.

In introducing an ordinance banning use of the phrase to advertise the city, Mayor Snyder had said it would become law if "anything happens to the circus".

The proposed ordinance provided $10 to $100 fines and jail terms of 10 to 30 days for violators.

Coffeyville, Kas., Apr. 22.—(AP)—Photographer Bill Steele always laughed at the joke about somebody's breaking the camera when he had his picture taken. But a Coffeyville youth smiled pleasantly as Steele snapped the shutter.

POLITICS

AP Reports Gossip Among Politicians in Washington

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER

Washington, April 22—(AP)—In line with President Roosevelt's assertion that the United States "was keeping out of the wars in Europe and Asia", Democratic leaders gave every indication today of making administration foreign policy a key point in their political campaigning.

Roosevelt touched on world relations in a radio speech Saturday night to Young Democrats' rallies, in which he called for nomination by his party of "a liberal pair of candidates, running on a liberal and forward-looking platform".

The president gave no hint, however, as to what candidates might win his support in the event he does not run for a third term. His discussion of foreign affairs included the statement: "We are keeping out of the wars x x x but I do not subscribe to the preaching of a Republican aspirant for the presidency who tells you in effect that the United States x x x should do nothing to try to bring about a better order x x of world peace when the time comes".

Politicians here expressed belief that the "Republican aspirant" to whom he referred was Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC) picked up the president's viewpoint in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee. He said that Dewey had "one foreign policy for the Atlantic seaboard and another x x for the middle west".

Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash) told a West Virginia rally that the New Yorker's speeches "indicate a sublime ignorance of any of the fundamentals of foreign policy".

Then, as if to indicate that there had been some coordination of Democratic speeches on foreign policy, Postmaster General Farley told a Boston audience last night that the record of the Roosevelt administration in keeping the nation out of war was a "remarkably outstanding" one.

With the president and Dewey far out in front in pledged and semi-pledged convention delegates, the Democrats this week will select 80 additional delegates, including 72 in Pennsylvania's primary tomorrow and eight at-large in an Illinois convention Friday. They already have chosen 248 of their total of 1,094.

Republicans will pick 106 this week to add to their 336 already selected out of a total of 1,000. The 106 will consist of three to be chosen today in Hawaii, 72 tomorrow in Pennsylvania, six in Delaware Wednesday, two in the Philippines Thursday, and eight at-large in Illinois, 11 in Mississippi, and four at-large in Missouri Friday.

Roosevelt's name is the only one entered in the Pennsylvania preference balloting tomorrow. The vote, however, will not bind the delegates. While there is no name on the Republican presidential ballot, party leaders say that the delegates will support

Gov. Arthur James as a favorite son.

Interest centered in the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination between Senator Joseph F. Guffey and Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man.

Other week-end political developments:

Capitol Hill heard that Roosevelt had invited Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to a White House political conference with him on his return from Warm Springs, Ga. Wheeler has indicated that he would be a candidate for the presidential nomination if the president does not run.

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA Commissioner, wrote all WPA employees that "WPA is not in politics and does not take part in politics, either directly or indirectly. Voting is your own business. Keep it that way".

SEC. HULL WISE POLITICIAN

Washington, April 22—Politicians here seem disposed to take Secretary Hull's unresponsive words about the presidential nomination in the same sense as the driver who disregards a "stop" sign and explains to the judge that it didn't say "positively".

Thus far, Hull simply has said he was not a candidate. He has not said that he would not run if nominated or would not serve if elected.

The secretary did not come from the upper forks of the creek yesterday. He has been in politics around Washington for a long time. He was a member of the House and of the Senate before he entered the cabinet. And there was a spell a long time ago when he was chairman of the Democratic national committee.

He knows equally the hazards that may trot out of White House coat closets and the deep political morasses of Capitol Hill. He can find his way around Washington without a map.

Consequently, Hull knew exactly what he was saying when he said he was not a candidate. He knew how the politicians would read that statement. He must have realized that to their minds he had left off the "positively".

The fact that a man is not a candidate, on the basis that Hull has stated, is not of itself enough to keep his friends from working for him. Purely of their own accord, quite a few men strewn about the country are blowing horns for the secretary.

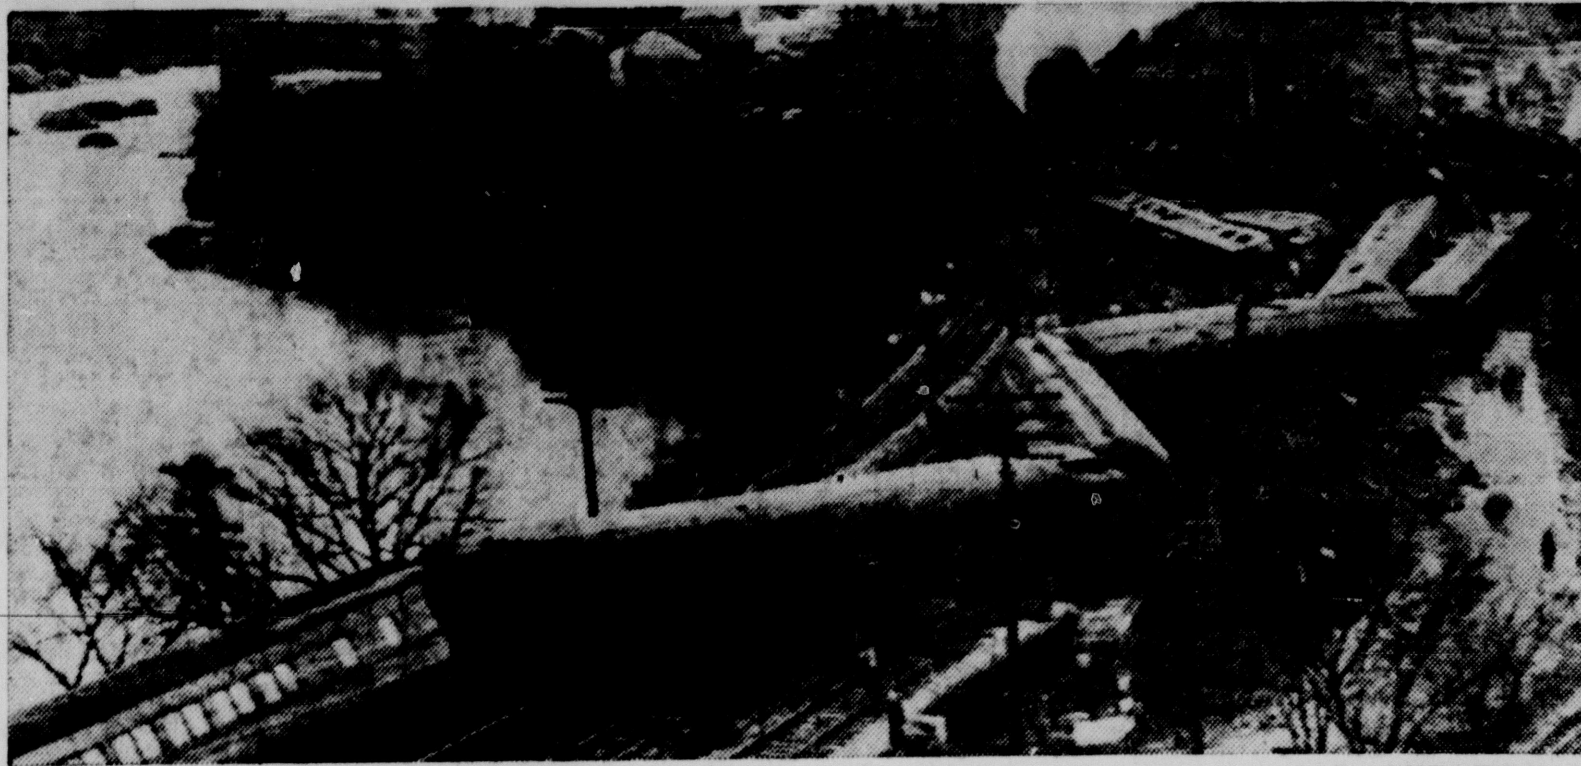

Little Egypt and St. Louis Girding for Economic War

St. Louis, April 22—(AP)—The "coal war"—southern Illinois versus St. Louis—broke out on new fronts today as more cities joined those protesting against enforcement of St. Louis' new anti-smoke ordinance and a proposal to substitute Arkansas anthracite coal for Illinois soft coal.

DuQuoin, one of the largest cities in the coal-producing field, was the latest to join the threatened move to boycott St. Louis merchants. Mayor Carl Barker of West Frankfort informed civic leaders of Harrisburg and Eldorado, leaders in the movement, his city was ready to "help preserve the economic sovereignty of 'little Egypt'." Groups in Herrin and Carrier Mills also have announced opposition.

Southern Illinois coal operators have been aroused over a new ordinance which restricts the burning of smoky coal and a plan to reduce the freight rate on Arkansas smokeless coal to make possible the marketing of 500,000 or more tons of that fuel here next winter.

At the same time, the cities' action drew a sharp reply from James L. Ford, Jr., chairman of the St. Louis smoke elimination committee. He said in a statement:

Draws Sharp Reply
"It is beyond understanding how anyone could be critical of a city which has suffered in the health of its citizens for generations and which has lost a substantial part of its population and watched its property values fade away, for finally arising and asserting itself—that it will no longer tolerate the cause of these of these conditions x x x."

"And who are the critics? x x Of all those who have less right to be critical than any are certain citizens of southern Illinois who have shipped into this city a product which has brought these evil conditions upon us. x x x"

"Let us look into what St. Louis has done to bring down the wrath of this certain element in Illinois. We say to them: 'We will still take 75 per cent of your product as we have been taking it in the past, for we can burn that amount in mechanical equipment smokelessly, but won't you please help us to take a 100 per cent supply from you by processing the remaining 25 per cent so that it will not smoke in our furnaces and stoves that are not mechanically equipped?'"

Protests Urged
"Is that an unreasonable or unfriendly attitude?"

"Wake up, Illinois! Meet the situation by establishing processing plants for that part of your volume you will lose through no fault of St. Louis, which has always been your best customer. Be thankful to St. Louis for the large volume you will retain x x x."

Barker urged West Frankfort merchants to protest St. Louis action by writing dealers from whom they purchase supplies here.

"Once we barricade our markets behind our great 'bituminous line,' St. Louis business will find it difficult to blast us out," Barker asserted.

Ex-White Slaver Now Union Leader, Faces New Charges

New York, April 22—(AP)—George Scalise, 43, a stocky ex-convict, undertaker and powerful sub-chief of the American Federation of Labor today answered criminal charges that he had collected $100,000 in a labor extortion racket with a statement that he was a "victim of political aspirations".

Detectives seized the $25,000-a-year president of the Building Service Employees International Union in a pre-dawn raid Sunday at a midtown hotel.

They acted on instructions telephoned from San Francisco by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who is campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination.

The sleepy-eyed, silk-pajama-clad union leader of 70,000 scrub-women, chambermaids, elevator operators, porters and window cleaners was permitted to dress. He was then hustled to a police station and booked on charges of extorting $100,000 in the last three years from 20 New York hotels and 11 window cleaning firms.

Scalise, who served 4½ years in Atlanta federal prison for white slavery in 1913 and since has been turned twice in attempts to obtain a presidential pardon and restoration of civil rights, was fingerprinted and arraigned in General Sessions court before Judge Jacob Gould Schurman, Jr.

Union Posts $40,000 Bail

He was released in $40,000 bail posted by his union after spending the day in Tombs prison. His secretary, Ann Kay, arrested Saturday as a material witness, was freed in $20,000 bail the union put up for her.

Assistant District Attorney Murray I. Gurfein said Scalise extorted money from hotels by threatening them with strikes, excessive wage increase demands and sabotage.

Gurfein named as co-conspirators with Scalise two other union officials—Izzy Schwartz, eastern representative of the building service union, and his brother, Louis Schwartz, president of local 320.

The Schwartz brothers, indicted Feb. 28 on charges of conspiracy to commit extortion, are free in $6,000 bail each.

In San Francisco, Dewey said he had directed arrest of Scalise "after I was informed by telephone that he was getting ready to flee to Chicago".

Scalise, who had appeared unperturbed in court, later told reporters heatedly that he was "a victim of political aspirations" and was being used as "a political football".

"I know this is the opening gun in a new campaign against the standards of the building service workers. I will fight it to the last ditch with complete faith in American decency and justice," he said in a statement.

The best kind of golf ball for use of the duffer is one of very light weight, of standard dimensions, and covered with a crocheted jacket. This retards its speed and renders it less dangerous as a missile when it flies wide of its mark.

Dixon Woman, 87, Recalls Lee County Prairie Fire

By LOIS J. STIMELING

A roaring, crackling prairie fire; prowling wolves which "sometimes looked in the windows at night," and Indians, which, although terrifying to a little girl, were in reality harmless.

These, especially the conflagration which burned her father's haystack but was prevented from reaching the house, remain the most deeply etched mental pictures Mrs. Hannah Heckman retains of early days in Lee county.

Mrs. Heckman resides at 1222 Third street. She celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday anniversary on Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace A. Carpenter, of 1315 Third street, where she is making her home for the present.

She has resided in and near Dixon since coming west with her parents at the age of three. She was born at Berkley Mills, near Somerset, Pa., April 20, 1853, the second child of Gearhart H. and Mary (Leydig) Missman. Her father, who came to the United States from Germany at the age of 18, was a miller.

The family's flight when Mrs. Heckman's older brother fell from a plank footbridge across the mill race and was barely saved from being swept into the mill wheel resulted in their decision to leave Somerset county and seek a new home farther west. They traveled to Pittsburgh by wagon, (from where their horses and household goods were shipped by boat to Fulton, Ill.), and came by train to Dixon, then the terminus of the Northwestern railroad.

Land Was Cheap
Fertile Nelson township land, Mrs. Heckman remembers, sold for $1.25 an acre, when her father purchased his first 160 acres.

At one time he owned an entire section, and he broke the virgin land with crude plows drawn by oxen. Buckwheat was usually the first crop cultivated by these pioneer farmers, she says.

There were no roads through the country in that early day, and only a few houses dotted the prairie. Later, when the land was surveyed, many of the dwellings sat far back from the new roads. The Missmans were more fortunate. Mrs. Heckman recalls, as the road was routed within a block of their house.

Wolves howled about the houses at night, and often made away with unprotected young pigs and chickens. Mrs. Heckman was just tall enough to see out the window when the prairie fire occurred. Her mother and grandmother aided the men of the family in their unsuccessful attempt to burn a fire ring about the hay.

Indians Were Numerous
Indians were numerous near Sterling. The unfamiliar-looking redskins were frightening to the Missman children, who occasionally accompanied their parents on a wagon ride to Sterling for supplies.

Mrs. Heckman's uncle, Jonathan Leydig, was wounded in the Civil war. Her father had no part in the great conflict, as he had sustained a leg fracture from a falling tree while hauling timber from Malugen's Grove southeast of Amboy. He was a rugged man, and while still pinned beneath the tree, asked for his box of lunch at noon time.

The Dixon woman's recollections take her back to hard times which followed the war. "Folks couldn't afford coffee, so they browned rye in the oven for a substitute. It tasted pretty good, too," she recalls.

She attended the Little Brown school, a few miles southwest of Dixon through the fifth grade, and that was considered the average education. Julius Lloyd was one of her early teachers.

Thus, Mrs. Heckman's listener is taken back with her in reminiscence to the days of the Sanders and McGuffey readers, old-fashioned wood stoves, and spelling, writing and singing schools. Some times her father took her to school on horseback, and at other times, she walked, or rode alone, turning the horse free at the school house door to return to the farm yard of its own accord.

The Missmans attended morning services at the Lutheran church, located in a grove of trees near the present location of Oakwood cemetery. Mrs. Heckman remembers that they arose early, had their cows milked, and were in town by 9 o'clock. "We rode in a wagon, and didn't have any spring seats, either—just boards," she says.

The Rev. Mr. Morse, who conducted the services, usually accompanied the Missman family home from church, and held Sunday school at the Little Brown school in the afternoon. "I remember that he always wanted bread and milk when he came to our house," the aged woman says.

She later sang with a quartet at the Emanuel Evangelical church, located on the pump factory road.

Married in '76
Her marriage to William Wilson Heckman was solemnized Aug. 6, 1876, at the home of her parents. The Rev. Mr. Sanders, pastor of the old Zion Lutheran church in Nelson township, officiated.

The couple went to housekeeping on a farm adjacent to the Missman place. After retiring from farming, he acted as organizer for the American Sunday School Union, and Mrs. Heckman used to accompany him on his trips through the coal mining region near LaSalle. They traveled by horse and buggy.

Mrs. Heckman attended programs by many of the distinguished visitors who came to the platform of the old Assembly Park chautauqua. For several years, she served as matron of the W. C. T. U. tent on the grounds.

She has two children, Mrs. Carpenter, and C. E. Heckman, both of this city, and one brother, M. W. Missman of North Brinton avenue. Another son, Walter, is deceased.

Although infirmities of age have impaired her eyesight slightly, and she suffers from arthritis in her hands, Mrs. Heckman's general physical condition is good.

LEAVES FOR SOUTH

Miss Anne Eustace left Sunday morning for Birmingham, Ala., for a brief visit with her sister, Mrs. E. T. Schuler.

An indication, perhaps, of a rebellion against the generally accepted beige silk stockings was shown at Schiaparelli's recent Paris collection. Her mannequins wore the gayest of colored hose, many pairs beautifully embroidered. With hips played down this season and skirts very, very short, this designer focuses attention on legs.

Blossoming Out for Spring

Here are ideas for new ways to wear the Spring flowers your best beau will (you hope) send or wire. Fastened to the belt of the soft rose wool bolero dress, the cluster of fresh, frosting pink tulips dramatizes the fashionable slender look through the waistline. For further springtime smartness, two tulips to match those in the corsage are pinned across the front of the dull blue sailor of rough straw.

A comfortable chair, a convenient table and a well-adjusted lamp are an invitation to relaxation with a favorite book. The table should be chosen of a size in proportion to the chair, a sturdy piece that stands firm and has space for ashtrays and such. The lamp should be of the right height to focus the light on book or paper. Usually the table with lamp is placed to the left of the arm chair.

Dolores Scott and Joseph Smidebush Are Wed at Amboy

Miss Dolores Scott, daughter of the L. A. Scotts of Amboy, and Joseph R. Smidebush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smidebush of Sterling, exchanged wedding vows at St. Patrick's Catholic church in Amboy on Saturday morning. The Rev. Father Robert C. Troy celebrated the nuptial mass at 7 o'clock. Jack Scott, the bride's brother, and John Smidebush, brother of the bridegroom, served.

The bride wore white chiffon with a fingertip veil, and carried white gardenias with freesia. Her sister, Miss Eleanor Scott, was her only attendant, and was attired in pink chiffon. The bridesmaid's bouquet contained pink roses.

Leo C. Eckert came from Baltimore, Md., to serve as best man. Lloyd Bieler of Amboy sang an Ave Maria.

The bride's mother was wearing an ashen of roses ensemble and Monat rose, with a shoulder corsage of roses and sweetpeas. Mrs. Smidebush was wearing aquamarine blue with navy accessories, accented by a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

A wedding breakfast was served to about 40 relatives at the Hotel Nachusa in Dixon. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Smidebush left on a motor trip through the south.

The bride was graduated from Amboy Township high school, and later attended the Dixon Business college. Mr. Smidebush was graduated from Sterling Community high school, and attended Scoville Business college.

Out of town guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Smidebush and son John and daughter Mary Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Roman Smidebush, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Adams and son Donald, Sterling; Mrs. S. S. Wokna, Des Moines, Iowa; Mrs. Leo Eckert, Sr., Sterling; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Scott and son Donald, Miss Betty Sterling, and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Fluhr, East Chicago, Ind.; Miss Elizabeth E. Scott, Normal, Ill., and Let B. Pitcher, Abingdon.

Remember that perfume—any perfume—must be applied sparingly, subtly. Just because your spring perfume seems so much lighter than winter scents, don't splash it on lavishly. After your bath and before dressing, use an atomizer to spray head, shoulders and arms. If you like, put a tiny drop on each wrist or in the crook of each elbow. But this, too, should be done at least half an hour before HE calls for you.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even darken the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots who may resist the intrigues of the favorite are liable to become suspected and detested, while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people to surrender their interests." From the Farewell Address.

Norway Had No Dies Committee

Treachery within the Norwegian government and its fighting services evidently played some part in enabling the German forces to gain a foothold in Norway. How important this help to the invader may have been cannot now be determined. Certainly the speed of the assault took the Norwegian government, the army, the navy, and the people, more or less by surprise. There was inevitable confusion and during the critical period of the landing the Norwegian nation was stunned.

At such a time, the treason of only a few determined men, with plans carefully laid in advance, could have been sufficient to deprive the nation for a few hours or days of the power of cohesive action and therefore of effective resistance.

The traitorous conduct of Kuusinen and his followers in Finland was of the same sort though it appears to have been less effective from the military viewpoint.

Norway's experience, and Finland's have their clear meaning for this country. The Dies committee for several years now has been amassing evidence to prove that both the Nazis and the communists have been recruiting followers in this country and assigning duties to them. A good many citizens seem to have the notion that the committee has been shadow boxing or, at any rate, attacking an enemy of no consequence. They hold to this view in spite of the fact that Mr. Dies and his colleagues have produced convincing evidence to show that what did happen in Finland and Norway is being prepared here.

The committee proved, among other things, that the Nazi bands are organized as military units, governed by military discipline. Nazi sympathizers have been convicted of obtaining military information in this country and among the agents they employed was Erich Glaser, a former private in the army air corps, and Otto Voss, an airplane mechanic. The committee has shown that communists have been taken into various administrative departments in Washington and some of them have key positions.

It was disclosed that Russian money had retained the services of men of influence in the New Deal. Testimony was introduced, for example, to show that $25,000 was paid to Preston McGowan, former minister to Venezuela and now an assistant to Charles Michelson, publicity representative of the Democratic national committee; another $32,000 went to Scott Ferris, the Democratic national committeeman from Oklahoma. The sums were retainers for services in connection with the proposed purchase of battleships for Russia in this country. The evidence does show unmistakably that large sums of Russian money are available in this country for the purpose of purchasing traitors.

It is known, thanks largely to the Dies committee, that the communists are influential in some labor unions and particularly in the C. I. O. unions in the basic industries such as steel, motors, automobiles, oil, coal, shipping, and power. The C. I. O. has been trying strenuously to organize the men and women in the government offices as well. Undoubtedly, the great majority of the members of these unions are loyal beyond any question to this country, but if only a few of the leaders are not, the damage they can work at a critical moment is incalculable.

The experience in Norway indicates all too clearly that there can be a fanatical devotion by non-Germans to Nazi doctrine, a devotion powerful enough to overcome the patriotic instinct. The experience of Finland with its Kuusinen proves that the bolsheviks can command the same kind of conduct from non-Russians. There is no slightest doubt that both the Russians and the Germans are working secretly in every country and this one in particular to strengthen themselves and weaken opposition from abroad.

The Dies committee has a real job to do and an important one. It is doubtful if either the Nazis or the communists have yet succeeded in organizing fanaticism and treachery in this country to the point where they may be as effective in a crisis as they proved to be in Scandinavia, but the danger is present and it is nothing short of criminal folly to pretend that it isn't. The Dies committee has done a most useful piece of work in exposing the machinations of foreign governments in this country and has earned the gratitude of Americans who believe that one Benedict Arnold is enough for this nation. —Chicago Tribune.

Nebuchadnezzar Wasn't So Crazy

The story is told of old in the Book of Daniel, how the mighty King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon was "driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws."

Most Bible readers have jumped to the conclusion that Nebuchadnezzar had suddenly turned up a little crazy.

But not so crazy, say modern dietetic experts of the Department of Agriculture. Eating grass for breakfast is the best way to get your daily vitamins, say they. True, ordinary green grass from your front yard is just a touch tasteless and fibrous. But scientists, those Daniels of the 20th century, are working even to overcome that. Soon, they say, we'll all be eating grass "as oxen."

So hail Nebuchadnezzar, father of tomorrow's breakfast food!

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Washington, April 21—Military ability of each trembling European neutral to withstand dictatorial aggression has been computed by a competent official authority here. It may offer best evidence as to where the dictators will spring next. Sharply abbreviated it follows:

Holland—A lightning German thrust might get to the coast, but Belgium would allow the French to cross through to flank the Germans. The Belgians are bound to aid the Dutch. In view of this flanking threat the Germans probably could not hold the coastline. Germans and allies would be fairly evenly matched in Holland with the outcome in doubt. Netherlands has a weak army (650,000) and less than 1,000 men in her air corps.

Sweden—Could not possibly hold out any length of time without help against a thoroughly organized Nazi invasion. (625,000 available troops, 3,000 air men.) If the Nazis can maintain their position in Norway, they may then pinch off Sweden, without much military difficulty. Substantial British entrenchment in Norway will strengthen Sweden to whatever extent it develops.

Hungary—Can be conquered by the Nazis anytime without firing a shot. Nazi infiltration has so weakened Hungarian defenses as to make Hungary as ripe and easy for plucking as Austria. Army numbers 700,000, with 4,500 in the air corps.

Switzerland—Would be hard for the Nazis to get through as the French are alert and would move in to meet them before they proceeded very far.

Belgium—Is in the same situation. The French could move in faster than the Germans. Army 814,000, air men 7,500.

Rumania—Could put up a real fight and probably hold off the Germans until the allied forces under General Weyand arrived from the Near East, especially if Turkey cooperated. The Rumanians have an army of 1,000,000 and 800,000 reserves, with more than 15,000 fighting flyers. A Hitler invasion of Rumania is not inviting for the additional reason that fighting there would mean destruction of oil and wheat resources he desires.

Yugoslavia—Has as large an army as Rumania but is very weak internally because of the friction between Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. Mussolini might arrange to take it without serious difficulty.

Greece—Could not stop any major power. 595,000 troops, 6,200 in air corps.

Turkey—Has only about 710,000 men ready and 3,500 air fighters, but is strategically situated so she could hold her own against either Russia or Italy.

Closest inside senate checking shows a good majority, about 60 votes, for the Walter-Logan anti-bureaucracy bill, yet it may not pass. New deal senators are becoming active to prevent a vote, and the real struggle is taking place backstage on this point.

The impressive majority of 282 to 97 in the house revealed widespread personal anger of legislators with executive bureaus of the government.

Several members later said the best speech of this congress was the final few words delivered by Representative Hutton Summers of Texas. Summers lamented the creation of government bureaus by congress, the award to them of executive, judicial and legislative power over citizens, the fact that the president could not even know who all these little bureaucrats are, and that when congress adjourns these officials function unrestrained with all the powers of kings.

Practically all friends of the White House are exceptionally astute in conversation about Mr. Dewey. The president himself is represented by more than one of his associates as really inclined to run for a third term in case Dewey gets the Republican nomination. The Dewey speeches concerning the integrity of the new dealers have apparently aroused them far more than his earlier attacks.

SERIAL STORY

K. O. CAVALIER

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

COPYRIGHT, 1940, N.E.A. SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Well out at sea, the reporter-stowaways are discovered. Val threatens to refuse them the use of the radio, but Eddie tells her he won't let her do that. She gives in. Later, Eddie takes a voyage to Val. It is signed "Rodney-Rodney."

CHAPTER XXII

EDDIE didn't know a whole lot about Val Douglas' private life, but he was pretty sure she didn't have any close relatives named Rodney. So the guy who signed the wire "love," must have been someone else. Sure. Just one of a dozen guys who'd be willing to chase her around the country.

He found her helping Wong Lee with a batch of pies. "Message for you," he said and turned his attention to Wong.

She read it and then glanced quickly at Eddie. He was just starting to leave.

"Wait a minute."

He stopped.

"You're not very flattering," she said cryptically.

"I'm not very which?"

"This Rodney—I thought you'd show a little more curiosity."

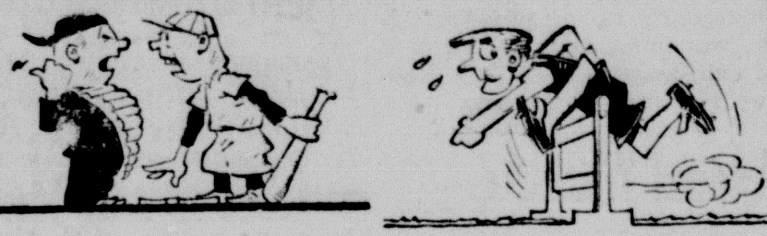

"What makes you think I would?" he asked bluntly. "Maybe you've got your signals crossed."

With that he left the galley. She stood looking after him. Maybe she did have her signals crossed, at that. But in the next instant she forgot about Eddie. What was Rodney Blair doing in San Francisco? And why was it she didn't feel particularly thrilled to see him?

Val was just a little afraid to answer the second question in her mind. She had a dawning suspicion that it involved Eddie Cavalier. Even against her will and what she thought was her better judgment.

THE LAND OF FISH-FILLED WATER

Art Wilson and Roy Barron returned last night from a four-day fishing trip at Wolf River, Wis. They reported that on Wednesday afternoon, during a snowstorm, they caught the limit in wall-eyed pike in two hours. Each other day they were able to catch the limit also. About 5,000 people crowded the fishing spot over the week-end and boats were lined all up and down the river. The bridges scarcely had standing room for bait-throwers. Wolf River is 208 miles north of here.

IF YOU SWALLOW TOO MUCH WATER

It's a little early to be dragging your swim suit out of the moth-balls, but one of these days you'll be plunging in the river at the Lowell park beach and maybe you're wondering who will be there to save your life if you swallow a little too much of the placid Rock river. The park board has announced that John (Apple) Crabtree will be the lifeguard again this year and will be assisted on Saturdays and Sundays by John Mitchell who is also serving as assistant playground director during the week.

TRACK MEETS TOMORROW

About 225 golfers soaked the little white balls around the Plum Hollow course yesterday in a banner day for the spring season. Although the formal grand opening will not be held until next Sunday, the new clubhouse was open to patrons and all were enthusiastic in the praise of the improvements made at the course. Yesterday's visitors included golfers from Polo, Sterling, Mt. Morris, Oregon, Princeton, Freeport, and Rochelle. All expressed their desire to return next Sunday for the opening.

AMBOY ATHLETE

Floyd Covill of Amboy and a student at Illinois State Normal university is a member of the Red Birds track team this season. Covill, a hard driving fullback on the varsity grid team, has developed into a capable high hurdler and all around weight man. They say you can't keep a good man down, but they have Bert Cummings within their power at the U. S. Veteran's hospital at Hesperia, Ill. ## BOB FELLER AND DIZZY DEAN ARE BLASTED OFF HOME LOTS

By BILL WHITE

Associated Press Sports Writer American League batsmen can breathe easier today. Bobby Feller's only human after all.

Rated off his performance in white-washing the White Sox with a no-hitter opening day, plus the knowledge that his blinding speed is matched by newly-acquired baseball cunning, the outlook was anything but bright for the hapless hitters. But he lasted only three innings yesterday as the Detroit Tigers rapped him solidly for six hits and an ultimate 12-2 victory.

The 21-year-old phenom was greeted with a loud double from the bat of Barney McCosky, first Tiger to face him, and that was all the Tigers needed. They went to work with a vengeance, finally driving him from the mound with a five-run assault.

Schoolboy Rowe went the distance for the Tigers and allowed but five hits.

White Sox Recover The White Sox, victims of the Feller fireball last Tuesday, finally recovered enough to stage a battling spree for a 6-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. It was the first time in three tries that the Sox had won.

While Ted Lyons, their ageless veteran, was holding the Browns to seven hits, the Sox socked Slick Coffman around unmercifully, getting all their blows off him. After putting the game safely away in the sixth with a three-run outburst, the Chicagoans were held hitless the rest of the way by some nice relief hurling by Johnny Niggeling.

In the only other game played in the majors, the St. Louis Cards greeted their former hurler, Dizzy Dean, warmly—too warmly, in fact, for the perennial pop-off, who was blasted off the mound in the fifth as the Cards won a 5-4 thriller from the Cubs.

Redbirds Were Helpless The Redbirds were helpless in the first three frames, the great one's "nothing ball" offering nothing more substantial than a shadow to swing at. But trouble

Neither of the two evening loops will be battling for first place honors in the windup. The Ladies' League which ends tonight has already decided that the Hi-Way Grill quintet is the championship team and Ted's keggers have won the title in the Commercial Loop which ends Friday evening. Bunched Around Second Carson's team, 19 games behind the leaders, now holds the runner-up position in tonight's league with Dr. Bends and the Dixon Recreation tied for third place and the Ideal Cafe and Amboy tied for fifth.

Ted's team leads the second-place Spark's club by a six-game margin with the Round-Up one game behind Spark's bowlers. Rink and Coss follow in that order and each with one game less than the team one step higher. The Ladies' Afternoon League, is a "fun league" and does not follow the schedules of the evening groups. C. is the nation's best javelin thrower and Fred Wolcott, Rice hurdler, is set to make it three straight in the national collegiates.

TWO BOWLING

FAVORED TEAMS HAVE HAD THEIR CHANCES IN ABC

Detroit, April 22—(AP)—From now on, it's going to be tough on the keggers who try to weigh their way into leadership in the American Bowling Congress.

Fifteen days remain of the annual pin classic, but the great majority of favored teams already have had their chances on the tournament alleys and the scores, while not of record-breaking caliber, are good enough that many of them may stand.

None of the teams scheduled on the Sunday evening card came close to the performance of the Rosedale club, of Kansas City, Kan., who rolled 3,003 in Saturday's late shift. The Rosedale outfit's score was the second to pass the 3,000 mark and took second place behind the 3,047 rolled by the Monarch Beer quintet of Chicago.

Herb Freitag and Joe Sinke, of Chicago, created the other sensation of the week-end when they hit 1,346 for top spot in the doubles.

The leaders (first three in each event):

Wisconsin and Illinois Lead
Big 10 Baseball

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Illinois and Wisconsin lost a game apiece in the Big Ten baseball race last week, but they're still riding the crest as competition goes into the third week.

The co-leaders each split two-game series, enabling them to remain a half game ahead of Iowa, defending champion.

The Hawkeyes take on Wisconsin at Madison Friday and Saturday in the featured set-to of the week-end. Illinois broke even with the Hawks last week. Harold Haub pitching the champions to a 7-4 victory in the first tilt and Al Grant pacing the Illini's 4-3 decision in the second contest.

Haub's triumph was his sixth straight in the conference this season and last.

Illinois will be going after its fourth and fifth victories this week in a two-game series with Ohio State at Columbus.

While the Illini was splitting with Iowa, Wisconsin was dealing a similar hand with Michigan. The Wolverines whipped the Badgers, 5 to 2 in the Friday engagement and the visitors snapped back with a 5-3 decision in the second tussle.

Wildcats Thrash Chicago In the only other contest Northwestern thrashed Chicago twice, 12 to 9 and 9 to 3. This enabled the Wildcats to climb into fourth place with a .500 rating while Chicago still is victorious in four games.

Indiana - Purdue and Ohio State-Minnesota were rained out, leaving all but Purdue still without an engagement within the circuit.

The week-end schedule also pits Purdue against Chicago on the Midway and Michigan against Indiana at Bloomington. Minnesota has a pair of non-conference tilts scheduled with Luther, and Northwestern meets Notre Dame Friday and Saturday.

The standings:

Team	W	L	Pct
Illinois	3	1	.750
Wisconsin	3	1	.750
Iowa	2	1	.667
Northwestern	2	2	.500
Michigan	1	1	.500
Purdue	0	1	.000
Chicago	0	4	.000

(Minnesota, Ohio State and Indiana have not entered the conference race yet.)

Correspondents of AP Recount Their War Experiences

New York, April 22—(AP)—

Four foreign correspondents for The Associated Press, who were on the scene when war started in Europe and the Far East, today addressed the annual meeting of their news organization and told, without hindrance of censorship, what they had seen and done.

They spoke after hearing Robert McLean, Philadelphia publisher and president of The Associated Press, pay tribute to correspondents in remote corners of the world, many of whom were exposed to physical danger.

The correspondents who told their experiences were C. Yates McDaniel, who came from Hong Kong; J. C. Stark, chief of bureau in London; Wade Warner, chief of bureau in Copenhagen; and Lloyd Lehrbas, who was the AP correspondent in Warsaw when that city was captured by the German army.

The first correspondent introduced was Warner, whose experience on the news front ranges from Hollywood to Moscow. He went abroad in 1929.

Werner predicted that "if war in the air comes to Europe in the concentrated form we experienced in Finland, and lasts as much as two years, a great hatred will sweep the civilian population of Europe, and it will not be hatred of the enemy. It will be hatred of the machinery of war."

Planes Not Accurate

Werner blamed the civilian death toll in air-raids in Finland not on deliberate intent of the Russians, but on the fact that bombing planes have got so large as no longer to be very accurate.

"Bombers seldom hit their target until they have hit everything else in the neighborhood," he said. "Censored dispatches from Finland naturally were top-heavy with damage to schools and hospitals, with casualties among civilians rather than among soldiers."

"Yet I honestly believe the bolsheviks were not deliberately trying to bomb civilians. I honestly doubt whether any belligerent in the present war will deliberately aim to kill civilians in an air raid. Bombs are expensive and civilian life is cheap. . . . The truth is, I fear, that the average bombing plane is a blunderbuss, and the bigger the plane the greater the margin of error."

"The war we are now watching from a great distance is a very big war. . . . So big that we have scarcely begun to realize its scope or even dimly its colossal ultimate consequences."

"It is a war so big that the great belligerents have found it difficult to get at each other; a war so fantastic that some of the fiercest fighting has been between neutrals—the great neutral Russia and the tiny neutral Finland."

Difficulties With Censors

Stark, whose work has been in London, told of the difficulties with British censorship.

For example, he said the Admiralty announced at a press conference one day that it needed 10,000 more fishermen to man trawlers.

"Our story was held up," Stark said. "I argued with the censor, explained it was an Admiralty announcement, but he said he hadn't been notified so he would have to check. A little later he said he could release the story if we changed it slightly."

"Instead of saying: 'The Admiralty today called for 10,000 more fishermen,' we must say: 'The Admiralty may possibly require 10,000 more fishermen.' By this time thoroughly exasperated, I suggested he might at least leave out the 'possibly' as superfluous. But he even refused to do this."

"So I told him to let the story go with his revision. Later he called, full of apology, to say he had been in error; that the Admiralty really had issued an appeal."

War in Far East

McDaniel said that while hostilities in Europe had taken the news spotlight from the Orient, the war in the Far East "hasn't really begun yet."

"The opposing leaders and their main forces have for some time kept well away from each other, or have gone far into remote regions with unspellable and unpronounceable names," he said.

"But that does not mean that nothing is happening out there. Much less does it mean that bigger stories are not going to break in the future. Japan still has a million or more men on the Asian mainland who are quite capable of doing a lot of damage."

China has several million soldiers and more ament than she started the war with. These immense forces are now sparring, their generals waiting for the right moments to deliver telling blows."

Allies and Nazis—

tended to southern Europe."

Nazi Plane Shot Down

A German warplane was shot down in a duel with three French fighters crashed at Narmont in the Belgian province of Luxembourg. Its pilot was found dead in the wreckage. Its two other occupants, one of them wounded, were interned. Belgium announced she was protesting to London and Berlin against the alleged trespassing by airmen.

Both sides claimed that at least 11 enemy planes had been shot down during the week-end.

The Germans said Britain had lost nine and France two in fighting over the North sea, Norway and the western front. British fighter planes repelled two air-raiders sighted over the Shetland islands today.

British and French airmen and anti-aircraft gunners brought down 11 German planes, the allies announced in Paris, not counting unverified reports of three others.

Fierce Land Fighting

On the ground, meanwhile, the German hold in Norway was challenged by combined British-French-Norwegian forces on at least two fronts—the Trondheim and Oslo districts—in fierce fighting for control of the north country whose fate may decide the war.

Twice during the week-end British fliers raided the Aalborg terminus of Germany's air ferry for troops sent to Norway, only 100 air miles across the Skagerrak.

Germany said that neither raid resulted in any serious damage. On the other side of the ledger the nazis reported they had sunk two enemy submarines and two enemy merchant ships during the week-end, damaged a British destroyer with bombs, shot down four British planes and bombed allied landing operations at Namsos and Andalsnes.

Two other British planes and two French craft were shot down over the western front, the Germans said. They acknowledged losing three planes themselves.

Britons Claim Success

The British claimed their second air raid in Aalborg was highly successful, asserting that numerous buildings and grounded planes had been hit.

One British plane failed to return from the second raid, the air ministry declared, saying this attack, too, had caused numerous fires. The British also synchronized air attacks during the week-end on Stavanger and Kristiansand, Norwegian coastal towns where German expeditionary forces have been landed.

Swedish sources reported that allied forces thrusting south from Namsos had struck at the Germans near Verdalsora, 35 miles north of Trondheim, in an effort to gain control of the railway to the Swedish frontier. Verdalsora was said to be in flames.

In the Hamar-Elverum district, about 60 miles north of Oslo, an allied column, after traveling by rail 160 miles from the coast, joined Norwegian forces in driving back the Germans. The Norwegian legion in Stockholm said Hamar had been re-captured and there were unconfirmed reports that Elverum also had been re-taken.

German reports added some confusion to the war picture since the nazis said they had reached Lillehammer, 25 miles farther north of Hamar.

Italy remained one of Europe's biggest question marks and intense interest was aroused by reports the German ambassador to Italy, Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen, had gone to Berlin for a conference with Adolf Hitler.

HOTEL GUESTS ROUTED

East St. Louis, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Fifty guests were routed from the Comfort hotel by fire and smoke at 6:45 A. M. today which caused damage estimated at $25,000. All made their way outside safely, although four were helped down fire escapes by firemen.

Most of the damage was confined to stock in a furniture and clothing store on the first floor.

Driverless Street Car Races Through Omaha's Streets; No One Hurt

Omaha, Neb., April 22—(AP)—A driverless 18-ton street car, which broke loose on a hill while the motorman sought help for a minor repair, raced 24 blocks at high speed through a residence and business district here early today before leaving the tracks at the first turn and crashing through the wall of a brick warehouse half a block away.

The car was empty and no one was injured. Street car employees estimated the car's speed reached 50 to 70 miles an hour as it roared across half a dozen arterial streets toward the city's main business district.

The injured were identified as Miss Harriet Kutcha, 24; Miss Eva Kujawa, 26, and Allan Krasowski, 25, all of Kenosha, and J. Snackenberg, 47, of Sigourney, Iowa, driver of the truck.

Annual Want Ad—

Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers to organize this educational effort on a national basis in 1933. Started with just a small group of newspapers in that year, the idea has grown by leaps and bounds until this year during the week of April 21 to 27 there hardly will be a community in the land which will not be reached by newspapers bearing the association's messages regarding want ads.

Properly Regulated

The fact that this newspaper belongs to the association and co-operates in the promotion of National Want Ad Week is an assurance to readers of a properly regulated want ad section in which they can have confidence.

The code of ethics of the association to which this newspaper subscribes, places definite restrictions on what can appear in the classified ads. Every precaution is exercised to be sure that every individual want ad, no matter how small, comes from a reliable source. Every effort is made to keep the want ad columns clean, truthful and 100 per cent dependable.

the driver, who stopped the truck as the victim fell on the paving in front of the machine.

Verdict of Accident

Potts told the jury that he observed the aged man walking in the street as he drove off the north approach of the Abraham Lincoln bridge and sounded his horn twice as a warning. The left front fender first struck him, then the bumper and he fell directly in front of the truck, which had stopped. The verdict of the coroner's jury was one of accidental death. Attorney C. J. Ryan attended the inquest representing the truck driver.

Edward A. Blackman was born Dec. 26, 1855 at Windom, Ohio, the youngest son of John and Martha Blackman. He was the last member of a family of three sisters and four brothers. Surviving relatives are two nieces and a nephew: Mrs. Jacob Wahnke, Mrs. Stella Voss and Wilbur Santee, all of Dixon.

Lawmakers See Minute Chance of Saving Money

Washington, April 22—(AP)—Influential lawmakers predicted today that Congress would appropriate about $7,870,000,000 for this session resulting in little if any savings under President Roosevelt's budget estimates.

Although the President told reporters last week that it seemed likely Congress might cut about $200,000,000 off the 1941 expenditures which he proposed last January, some senators said this now appeared impossible.

As an illustration, they pointed to the likelihood that the army and navy would ask supplemental funds of $100,000,000 or more for defense needs which were not considered in the original budget. An expenditure of this nature virtually would wipe out the tentative reductions of $118,051,334 which have been made in appropriation bills considered so far.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the Senate finance committee commented:

"If we get through with this session and stay within the President's original budget estimates, Congress will have done a fine job."

Harrison and others, however, were understood to have been cheered by recent reports that revenues were running far ahead of expectations. Roosevelt said it seemed likely that treasury estimates, used in making up the budget forecasts in January, would be exceeded by $200,000,000, but some congressional leaders have been predicting that this figure would be increased to $350,000,000 when the returns are complete.

Infant, Buried Under Pile of Coal, Unhurt

St. Louis, April 22—(AP)—The 12-day old son of Al (Boots) Hollingsworth, major league pitcher, escaped death or serious injury in an auto-truck collision yesterday while he was being taken home from a hospital.

The infant was thrown from his mother's arms and buried under part of seven tons of coal. Mrs. Hollingsworth suffered broken ribs and a shoulder fracture.

Hollingsworth, former Rock Island, Ill., hurler, is now with the Washington Senators.

APPARENT SUICIDE

Herrin, Ill., April 22—(AP)—The body of James Malone, 53-year-old foreman on the Crab Orchard lake project who had been missing since last Monday, was found yesterday in the big muddy river bottoms near his abandoned automobile. A shotgun lay near the body.

WALTER KOHLER, EX-GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN, DIES

Typically American Life Story Ended; Started Poor

Kohler, Wis., April 22—(AP)—Death has concluded the typically American life story of Walter J. Kohler, industrialist, philanthropist and political leader.

The son of an Austrian immigrant who founded an enamelware and farm equipment plant, he started as a $1.25-a-day laborer in his father's shop and rose to the position of millionaire plumbing manufacturer and a term as governor of Wisconsin.

He was found dead yesterday by his wife in his room at Riverbend, his country estate at the foot of the hill upon which he built the model village of Kohler.

Kohler, chairman of the board of the Kohler Co., was 65 years old. Dr. Wesley Van Zanten, Sheboygan county coroner, said death was due to coronary embolism.

Funeral services will be conducted at Riverbend at 3 P. M. Wednesday.

Although he had never known poverty in its true sense, Walter Kohler's life was a story of adversity before he became nationally known as a politician, industrial town builder, aviation enthusiast and manufacturer.

His father's death just when their industry was gaining pace, the burning of the factory shortly after it had been moved to a projected model industrial village, and his work as a wage earner, taught him how misfortune could sting.

"I found while working beside the men at the furnaces and elsewhere in the plant something of the workman's viewpoint. Next to a reasonable wage, continuity of employment is most important in the life of the worker. Given these elements, he will accept opportunities to improve his home surroundings," he once said.

Kohler's sudden rise to political prominence was due to a combination of chance and the acumen of his wife, Andrew H. Dahl, of LaCrosse was a candidate for delegate-at-large to the 1928 national Republican convention at Kansas City but died before the vote was taken. Republican leaders of the state wanted a representative conservative.

Mrs. Kohler, known throughout the state in her own right as an art critic, lecturer and club woman, was present at the meeting at which delegate candidates were discussed. She sat almost unnoticed at the back of the room while the conference talked, pro and con, of this man and that. Then she took the floor.

Wife Drew Picture

From her observations through a quarter century of married life with Walter J. Kohler, she drew a picture of integrity, strength of character and ability for accomplishment that swept aside all political considerations. Her husband was named as the candidate, unknown to him and, as it proved, against his will.

He also did not know that mention had been made of Mr. Dahl's son as the acceptable candidate and it was characteristic of Kohler that he travel by plane all the way across the state from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river to tell the younger Dahl of this and to assure him that had he known the circumstances, he would not have accepted the place on the ticket.

Kohler was chosen delegate and it was related that within a few days after he had arrived at Kansas City he had made such an impression that the party leaders from Wisconsin began to importune him to run for governor. He refused at first even to consider such a step pleading that his manufacturing business consumed all his energy and working hours. But finally he was persuaded.

Long Court Fight

The result was a campaign which marked the first major defeat of the progressive wing of the Republican party in the state since "Bob" LaFollette senior had smashed the "stalwarts" 25 years before. It resulted too in a long, bitter court fight.

Wisconsin had been controlled politically for many years by the Progressives. The first deep rift in their lute came when Fred R. Zimmerman, incumbent governor in 1928, had split with some of the faction's leaders. The latter, in fact, accused Governor Zimmerman of having turned conservative.

So when Zimmerman announced himself a candidate for the primary, Representative Joseph D. Beck was put forward by the LaFollette partisans. This made a three-cornered race from which Kohler emerged triumphant.

The Progressives then tried to keep his name off the official ballot alleging that his primary campaign had cost $100,000 whereas the state law limited such expenditures to $4,000. A John Doe investigation was instituted, but the state supreme court found for the manufacturer by holding that the electorate had ample recourse at the polls.

Another political element that brought Kohler to the stump for an intensive pre-election campaign in which his airplane was his favorite mode of transportation, was the presidential situation that year. Milwaukee and several other sections of the state were strongly anti-prohibition in sentiment and looked favorably upon the Democratic candidate, Gov. "Al" Smith of New York. It was asserted that the defeated Progressive wing of the Republican party had made an "unholy alliance" with the Democrats to take advantage of this wet sentiment and get Representative Beck elected as an independent.

Kohler minced no words in his fight and against the advice of many of his own political friends, flatly urged the election of Hoover, even though it meant voting "dry". He was given much of the credit for keeping Wisconsin in the Republican column. For himself he won a total vote of 547,000 the largest ever given a candidate for governor in the state, his margin over his closest opponent being 153,000.

Troubles Multiplied

On January 7, 1929, he was inaugurated as the twentieth governor of Wisconsin. But his troubles with the Progressives, growing out of charges of campaign extravagances had only begun. The new attorney general was a Progressive and early in his term authorized special counsel to start out proceedings against the new governor.

Attorneys for Kohler did not want to fight the case in Madison, so they obtained a change of venue to his home county of Sheboygan. There were months of delay before the case came to trial and the proceedings themselves lasted a full month, but finally a jury acquitted the governor who was at once unanimously endorsed by the Republican state convention for renomination.

Through much of the time of these bitter fights, Kohler shuttled back and forth over the state by airplane, leaving the political arena to look after his business interests for a few days or hours, and then hopping back into the thick of the electoral fight.

His enthusiasm for aviation dated from his first airplane ride in 1924 when he was taken over Sheboygan by Anton F. Brotz, one of his employees. His next flight was from London to Paris while he was on a European business trip.

In the spring of 1927 Kohler constructed a small, but well-equipped airport at the model village of Kohler and shortly thereafter bought for himself a plane of the same model as was used by Col. Lindbergh to fly from New York to Paris.

Never Handled Controls

Kohler was always content to let a professional pilot fly the machine and so far as was known, never handled the controls himself. But as one of a small group of "flying governors" he preached and fostered aviation, sponsoring one of the first codes of state air laws and always stressing the importance of well lighted and marked airways and airports.

Mrs. Kohler frequently flew with him about the state and two of their four sons became licensed pilots, learning to fly at Kohler airport.

The governor was stocky and sturdy and of Austrian descent. He was born at Sheboygan March 11, 1875, and that city or its vicinity his home throughout his life. He kept in good physical trim by a variety of exercise and sports. In the summer baseball and horseback riding were his pastimes and in winter he went in for skating, skiing and bowling.

His well-knit body stood him in good stead in 1929 when he had to undergo a serious operation at the Mayo hospital in Rochester, Minn. He recovered quickly from this illness, which his helpers said, was induced at least partly by his unsparring efforts to manage simultaneously Wisconsin's two great est concerns—the state government and his own plant.

Worked Late Hours

Many times he worked at the Capitol in Madison beyond midnight, only to be back at his desk or en route to Kohler by air early the next morning.

The only other occasion of physical ill occurred when he twice fell from his horse while riding near Madison. In each instance, however, the steed stumbled. The net result was a damaged knee that required care for several months.

Mrs. Kohler frequently was at her husband's side on these equestrian excursions as she was in his public efforts. Before their marriage on Nov. 3, 1900, she was Charlotte H. Schroeder of Kenosha, Wis. The four sons born to them were John Michael, Walter Jodok, Jr., Carl James and Robert Eugene. All grew up to aid their father in business.

The family home in Kohler is "Riverbend," a country estate at the foot of a hill on which the village was built. Its grounds are bounded by a picturesque creek in the Sheboygan river, around the mouth of which stream the city of that name grew up as a Lake Michigan port. Up that river come small ocean freighters bringing a special kind of potter's clay to the Kohler works from Denmark.

Kohler was a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal church and active in many charitable and welfare projects. His benefactions, however, were seldom made public. Another extra-curricular activity was the University of Wisconsin of which he was a trustee for six years, being president of the board for three of those years.

Dr. Angear Will Retire Soon and Live in Florida

Announcement has just been made that the Angear hospital at Sublette hereafter will be conducted by Dr. Clifford Hartman formerly of Granville, Ill. Dr. B. H. Angear plans to retire after many years of practice in this vicinity and make his future home in Florida. Miss Evelyn Angear, his daughter, has been doing professional nursing all winter in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mrs. Angear and Evelyn went south in October and Dr. Angear joined them at Christmas time.

Dr. Angear and his wife have been identified with civic improvements in the village, and the new community hall will stand as a monument to the Angear family, who worked hard to secure it for residents of Sublette.

Dr. Hartman has been associated with his father, Dr. P. V. Hartman, and his brother Dr. Perry Hartman, in the Hartman clinic in Granville. He and Mrs. Hartman will move to Sublette about May 1.

Most Delicate Phase of Digging Chicago Subway Undertaken This Morn

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Sandhogs started burrowing under the Chicago river today on perhaps the most delicate phase of the entire $40,000,000 Chicago subway project.

It's the second of twin tunnels for the Dearborn street subway where, running east and west in Lake street, it dips for 300 feet under the south branch of the river. Last week they finished the first under-river tunnel, no mean engineering feat in itself.

The second one is more hazardous and requires even finer calculation, said Ralph H. Burke, the city's subway chief engineer, because its top will be only 15 feet under the river bed and it must be dug exactly between caissons supporting the Lake Street bridge.

This time in mid-river the sandhogs (miners) will encounter a nest of old pilings that once helped support an old swing bridge, taken out many years ago. The pilings must be cut away amid the ever-present danger that tons of Chicago river might come pouring into the tunnel from above.

People's Column

FOR TOWN MEETING

Editorial Telegraph:

After listening to the dramatization of the Town Hall last evening telling of its growth and achievements, it occurred to me that the trustees of the new Community House should be importuned to try and find some way to encourage the use of the assembly hall and the American way of public discussion by using said hall after the manner of the New York Town meeting of the air.

A group wants a swimming pool as some other improvement, let it be discussed with a moderator, but let the audience be a community audience and not a group. The Chinaman said the church was all talker, talker and no talker backer. This is not true of Town Hall. If our democracy is to stand, it must grow. The individual must use his opportunities and seek new ones. Town Hall is the democratic way. A democracy which says "let George do it," is inviting a dictator.

George Loveland has done his part and done it well. Any one who knew him knows he had opinions and freely voiced them. That's why he grew and those who knew him, know that he did grow. That is why we have his gift.

Let us have opinions from our leaders of public opinion on this idea which I believe is the American way. I am quite sure the Telegraph will do its part by printing them. Respectfully,

J. B. Stackpole.

State Conventions of Both Major Parties to Be Delayed Until May

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—County central committees of both political parties met today, in county seats throughout Illinois, to elect officers and pick delegates and alternate delegates to the biennial state conventions.

Indications were both Democrats and Republicans would defer their state conventions until middle or late May. The conventions are set by law for April 26 in Springfield, but Democratic as well as Republican leaders have announced the conferring on that date would be merely perfunctory.

In the county conventions today, each party organization will name one state convention delegate and one alternate for each 500 ballots cast by the party in the April 9 primary.

The return this week of Harry E. Hershey from a post-primary vacation was awaited before the definite fixing of a date for the Democratic state meeting. Secretary Joseph E. Knight of the Democratic state committee predicted the convention will be held in late May or early June.

proceeds of their air force, since their surface navy has been rendered virtually impotent for major operations, and their great land fighting-machine is prevented—barring a miracle—from striking a decisive blow because of the strength of the Maginot line.

The land forces will be employed. They may be let loose at any moment against Holland, for instance, but the purpose of such an attack would be mainly to provide air bases from which to strike at England and allied ships. In other words we may see a complete reversal of normal procedure and have a great army acting in support of the air force instead of being supported by it.

Apparently the Germans have depended largely on their transport planes to rush their expeditionary force to Norway, and they also have been moving not only food supplies but light artillery and other equipment by air. This of course accounts for the heavy Anglo-French attacks by air against German airdromes and planes.

Two Gliders Soar Over North Illinois Sunday

St. Charles, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Coasting motorless ships along on the uplift of rising air currents, two pilots, Stanley Corcoran of Frankfort, Mich., and Joseph Steinhilber of Chicago, made glider flights of 60 and 65 miles across northern Illinois yesterday.

Both flights started at an airport near here, with automobiles being used to tow the ships until the pilots reached sufficient altitude to cast off.

Corcoran who flew a distance of 60 miles before landing in a field near Ottawa, had an elapsed time of two hours and 45 minutes in the air. He said he reached an altitude of 6,500 feet.

Steinhilber, in an elapsed time of two hours and 40 minutes flew about 65 miles to Spring Valley, Ill.

Membership in Illinois Legion Hits New High

Bloomington, Ill., April 22—(AP)—Membership in the Illinois department of the American Legion stands at an all-time high of 82,669, State Commander L. N. Bittinger reported after checking results of the organization's 12th annual "aerial roundup".

Legionnaires flew into Bloomington from all parts of the state yesterday and brought with them 2,369 membership cards. The campaign by air marks the windup of the spring drive for members.

Bittinger said the new membership total represented a 4.916 increase over last year.

GOP Candidate Dies

Chicago —(AP)—Funeral services will be held Wednesday for State Representative John A. Pelka, 57, who died Saturday. Pelka, who was active in Cook county Republican politics for more than 30 years, had been renominated at the April 9 primary for his third term in the General Assembly as a Representative of the 15th District.

Father of Pilot Sees Son, Passenger, Die

Belleville, Ill., April 22—(AP)—A 500-foot crash of a privately-owned airplane south of here killed two men yesterday.

Marion Wainwright, 26, of Belleville, the pilot, and Forest Able, Jr., 24, of East St. Louis, were the victims.

At an altitude of 1,000 feet, the plane went into a tailspin, witnesses said, and dropped 500 feet before Wainwright brought it out of the dive. He apparently had it under control when a wing support snapped and the ship plunged into a field.

Wainwright's father, who had landed in another plane just before his son took off, witnessed the crash.

Springfield's Census Shows Total of 77,195

Springfield, Ill., April 22—(AP)—The population of the state capital was placed at 77,195 in a virtually complete census report today. This is a gain of 5,236 over the 1930 census figure.

Paul G. Dixon, district census supervisor, said the population figure was "substantially correct" but that the census books would be kept open for five days to permit the recording of persons missed by the enumerators.

City officials believed the population figure might jump to near 80,000 when the books finally are closed. They estimated at over 88,500 the combined population of the city and its suburbs.

Springfield ranked fourth in population among downstate cities in the 1930 census, trailing Peoria, Rockford and East St. Louis. The 1930 figures were Peoria, 105,155; Rockford, 85,828; East St. Louis, 74,315, and Springfield, 71,857.
